To Sioux Chief

Mario we have been very happy with the Ox Box since we started using it. Since you are asking we took some time to evaluate further. Here are some of the things we found that no other box had.

- * We have been able to install it in locations where no other box could have been installed. We can even separate them, drain box in back wall and valve box on side wall to safely open and close the valves in case of an emergency (hose leak) when using a stackable washer dryer.
- * We can install the valve box to connect water lines from above.
- * The U-Shaped bracket allows one plumber to install it alone and faster over a stud
- * We have been able to reduce the amount of washing machine boxes we use to just two models the CPVC version and the Sweat one, before we had six with the previous brands. We had a left, right, and center drain on both CPVC and Sweat.
- * Much nicer looking box
- * Recently Lennar homes wanted a box that had a cover to prevent the paint and plaster guys from covering up the arrestors in the box. Because it looks really messy and dirty and the other is that if the Plumbing Inspector can not read the arrestor's ASSE standard markings he will turn down the inspection.

Thank you for listening to us the plumbers by coming up with this one of kind washing machine and ice maker boxes.

Sincerely
